YOU SHOULD TRY...

JUST UNTIL
BY JOSEPH MOLDOVER

17-year-old Hannah Lynn has just one goal: to get out of Evans Beach, Maine. It's where she lost her mother to cancer. Where her estranged sister, Pauline, fell apart before moving out. Where her father, Larry, holds court as a local legend who once played twelve games for the Red Sox. Hannah has never fit in, but that doesn't matter now that she is finally on the cusp of escape. All she needs is a little help from her chemistry tutor, Richard, a fellow junior who she finds equal parts compelling and infuriating.

Then, one winter night, Hannah's life is turned upside down. Pauline's two sons are taken by the state, leaving Hannah and Larry the only people standing between the boys and the child welfare system. Her father promises that it will only be for a little while, just until Pauline gets back on her feet, but Hannah knows nothing is that simple when it comes to her troubled older sister.

Dera Edwards knows her life is over when she's sent to live with her estranged father in the middle of White Suburbia. To make matters worse, Dera learns that her new school doesn't have a girls' track team, shattering her dreams of getting a track scholarship and the Olympics. So she joins the boys' team instead. But while she has the school's blessing, her new teammates are less than welcoming. Between that and her distant father, Dera is positive her junior year is ruined.

Just as she starts to accept her status as an outsider, Dera is approached by her classmate Rosalyn, who wants to feature Dera's story in her blog. When it goes viral and gains attention across the state, Dera's new notoriety opens the door for trolls online and at school. Will Dera be able to keep outrunning her problems, or will her dream be the very thing that derails her?

WHAT COMES AFTER BY KATIE BAYERL

No one could be more disappointed about Mari's sudden death than Mari, herself. And if she ever thought about the afterlife, she certainly didn't think it would be a suburban enclave called Paradise Gate or that her biggest problem in the great beyond would be her recently deceased mother, Faye.

Mari realizes quickly Faye is her unfinished business and in order to ascend and join her loving grandparents, she'll have to forgive her dysfunctional mother.

It's a lot to sort through, but Mari tries to keep her eye on the ball all the while trying to remember how she died and deal with Faye, who is in danger of being kicked out of Paradise Gate. But then Mari discovers that in addition to mother drama, there's friend and boy drama in the afterlife. Even worse is the suspicion that Paradise Gate isn't at all what it appears to be...and a revolution may be afoot.

Grace Williams has her future all mapped out. She plans to move to New York after graduation to study at Barnard College, and win a Nobel Prize in biology. When she's asked to tutor Jack Nelson she thinks it'll be just another activity to list on her college application. Studying turns to flirting, flirting becomes secret hook ups, and despite her expertise in bio, Grace gets pregnant. In a state where abortion is illegal Grace's future is over before it's begun. With no one else to turn to, Grace must rely on her best friends, Addie and Sebastian, but anti-abortion laws put anyone who helps Grace in grave danger, and anyone they encounter might be an informant. When Grace finds a phone number and an offer of help scrawled in a bathroom stall, the three friends hatch a plan to sneak Grace across state lines. The risks to people she loves and those who have befriended her terrify Grace, but with Addie and Sebastian by her side, at least she isn't alone.
